MAJOR

A major in economics leading to a Bachelor of Arts degree requires completion of at least 47 credits as follows:

1. ECON 101 and 102, 203, 210, 211, INTR 201, 202
2. ECON 398 and either ECON 399 or 493
3. Four additional courses in economics numbered above 211. (Note: Only three credits from supervised study abroad may be used to meet this requirement and a maximum of nine credits from special topics courses may apply toward major requirements.)
4. One course chosen from POL 100, 105, and 111
5. Achievement in calculus at a level equivalent to MATH 101
6. One additional course in politics at any level or one additional course in mathematics for which MATH 101 is a prerequisite.
7. Grade-point average: at least 2.000 in the economics credits offered for the major, and at least 2.000 in the total of all credits, from whatever department, offered for the major.

Knowledge of mathematics is vital for students planning to pursue graduate study in economics. Students headed for graduate school are urged to seek the advice of members of the economics faculty in shaping their courses of study. Majors in economics who intend to pursue a Master of Business Administration degree or seek employment in the financial sector are advised to take courses in accounting. Economics majors interested in the consulting field should acquire strong computer skills and excellent writing skills, the latter through additional courses in English or journalism. Advanced study of a foreign language is essential for students interested in international career opportunities. Economics majors are encouraged to study abroad.

HONORS: An Honors Program in economics is offered for qualified students; see department head by March 1st of junior year for details.

ECON 101: Principles of Microeconomics (3)

Survey of economic principles and problems with emphasis on analysis of consumer behavior, firm behavior, market outcomes, market structure, and microeconomic policy. The first half of a two-term survey of economics. Should be followed by ECON 102. (SS1, GE6a) Staff.
